26 Therapists

As you may realize, the Recordcall.com system is based upon helping people, by people talking, the system memorizing, and the system sharing.

The mental health field is based upon patients talking to therapists, therapists making suggestions to patients, and therapists recommending medicines to patients. The preponderance of the therapist's time is spent listing to the patients talking. The average time that therapists spend with each patient is 45 minutes.The online medical resource Medscape, released its 2016 Physician Compensation Report, which features data from more than 19,200 doctors in 26 specialties. Part of the report includes information on how many minutes' doctors say they spend with each patient, with 13-16 minutes being the most commonly reported estimates.

The average hourly rate for a doctor is $89. The average hourly rate for a therapist is $35.

Here is our suggestion, regarding how to help the patients, and, to shorten the Therapist's time, spent with each patient visit.

a) You give simple instructions to each patient. (This system works for all patients, except those have no access to any type of telephone.)

b) Here are the instructions.

1. Whenever you have stress, or need help, call YesRecords (937 732-6737)

2. You will hear a beep Talk and explain what is going on. Your therapist will be able to hear what you said after you talk, hang up.

3. Make that call as often as you like. Make that call to speak, regarding "What you are thinking about". The more you call, the more your therapist will know about you, which will make your therapy visits, more targeted to your needs.

4. The therapist can listen to recordings as soon as they are made, and will likely be more effective at the next Patient visit.

c) Visits are shorter, patients get better service.

1. You, the therapist, can serve many more patients. Way More.

2. It also means that you can earn more money. Way more.
